FOREWORD

The future lies before me
Like a long, unchartered mile,
And I'm such a fearful traveler,
Let me pause a little while.

I have left undone a duty,
I've a mem'ry to recall;
A building stands behind me
With an old familiar hall;

And I recognize the foces

Of some people that I knew;

Though the world woits now before me,

The post owoits me too.

I seek to add no glomour

To my wandering memory;
I want to see the characters

The way they used to be.

I leave unchanged the places
That I'll visit once again;
The spirit so well known to me
Must feel as it did then.

Though the future is forever,

The past is but a pause,

A moment to remember

That this is the way it was

DEDICATION

A stick rattles in the light shode and swooshes lowly over our heads. A voice thunders through the corridors with a booming "How DARE you!" Of course this is Mr. Goodwin.

However, we shall remember you for more than your persuasive ranting, huffing, and puffing, Mr. Goodwin. You have been our friend for five years. It was your guidance that helped us to mature into young adults sharing the responsibilities of our class and our society. You have shown us a world historic and ever-changing. By your example of civic leadership you have made us oware that we must take our part in that world as proud citizens of our community and our nation.

You have always called us your special class. More than that, you are our very special, very dedicated teacher. Words or gifts are not enough to express our gratitude, so we dedicate to you the labor and laughter of our high school years which are embodied in this book, the product of our obilities.

So brandish your pointer and bellow and laugh and help to mold the lives of those who will come after us. But pause before that tomorrow comes and accept our words of gratitude. Thank you, Mr. Goodwin.

SALUTATION

The budding of

a new idea - untried - untaught;
Opinion-born

and bold sent on a whimsical thought;
The eye that looked with pity on all worldly strife -

This was the man that we knew in his spring of life.

The friendly warmth

to beach a spirit sinking, lone,

Turned suddenly

once more to drifting thought, and blown

Upon the yet

 $unharvested\ minds\ of\ us\ began$

To grow again

when we had later left this man.

Remembering still

the dedicated spirit, will

We think on him

as one with dreams - remembering still

The man who'll leave

a better world behind him when

The winter of his life leaves him for spring again.

Class of 1965:

Your accomplishments in the public schools of East Bridgewater are a source of pride for your community. Your successes are just dividends paid to all the citizens for their investment, both economic and civic, in public educations. Be thankful for your blessings and be mindful of your continued responsibility to yourselves and to each other. Over the years your parents have counseled and worked with you and for you. Humble about their own contributions, they have been ever eager for opportunities to commend your efforts.

Our citizens have recognized their responsibilities to youth and have worked to provide opportunities in depth and in value a little better than were ever given before. Their ardent hope is that you will reward their faith in you and in turn surpass their own accomplishments.

To do so, Class of 1965, each of you must devote constant attention to the obligations to yourself and others. There must be for you, and for all of us who say we love our community and nation, a never-failing attention to respect. Respect is wise discrimination in thoughts and actions, a measurement of our admiration for people and ideas, and a scale for self-examination. To strongly condemn a man we say, "He has no one's respect." For highest praise of a man we say, "He has the respect of all." Each of us normally wants the respect of others, for in such esteem and love comes happiness. To merit this honor we must exercise extreme care and concern. To this duty to oneself, members of the Class of 1965, may you ever be alert.

Very sincerely yours,

Stanley B. Goldman

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

To the Class of 1965:

The day of graduation is about to dawn. My personal best wishes accompany you as you assume the responsibilities of adulthood. It is basic that one of the first things we all learn is to face responsibility. A person is always responsible for himself and his actions; he soon realizes he must make his own choices and cope with the results.

The demands on our responsibility increase with our years. Maturing to adulthood, your aim is one of self-responsibility and happiness; your choices become completely your own. Eleanor Roosevelt wisely wrote, ''We are the sum total of all the choices we have made.''

Weigh your decisions carefully. Value your apportunities. Realize nothing is ever accomplished by the person who claims ''It can't be done.'' Tackle each task as it comes your way. Most of all, find truth in the James M. Barrie philosophy, ''The secret of happiness is not in doing what you like but in liking what you have to do.''

Very truly yours, Raymond Hamilton, Principal

CLASS PLAY

"The whale world's a stage." or, more accurately, the whole stage is your world when someone from the dark recesses of ropes, props, and curtains, calls, "Lights! Curtain! - You're on!" Stunned and afraid and unable to run you recite your lines mechanically until you actually become Emily Kimbrough, Carnelia Otis Skinner or any of the characters of the play "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," in which two young girls, traveling to Paris on an ocean liner, encounter the zaniest of experiences. At last you proudly take your baws at the curtain call. The senior class play was a hilarious success. Thank you actors, actresses and especially Mrs. Eileen Malloy, our director, and Dottie Sprague, our student director.

Amidst the swishing of taffeta, beneath crepe paper streamers in a transformed gymnasium, we dance away three short hours. It went so quickly, and yet we remember the months of preparation. We remember a quick sandwich and coke at ten o'clock the night before; we remember the bare feet and painted blue jeans; we remember how everyone contributed so willingly to the "streamer fund." This was the joy of our junior prom - the fun of working together to create an underwater ballroom out of an airy, dusty ball-room.

CHEERLEADERS

F-I-G-H-T ... F-I-G-H-T! A line of girls skip spritely onto the battlefield. Like the flightly muses they screech commands and warnings to the Easties' warriors. (It is unfortunate they do not have the influence of the muses over their losing teams.) "Fight ... score ... win!" The jeering crowds of the opponent; the lack of E.B. support; the losses. The Greek muses never performed a more difficult task with as much grace and vigor.

CROSS COUNTRY

Anxiously crouched at the starting line wait the teams. Tense muscles are ready to spring forward at the gun ... and they are running! Two to three miles over pavement and woodland paths, scattered with leaves that crunch under their feet, is the course of the cross country runner. Dogs occasionally nipping at their heels and the cool autumn breezes are their only companions. The individual runs alone. With the finish line in view their mouths drop open, gasping for air; their legs are weights, their motions mechanical. Victory is the reward

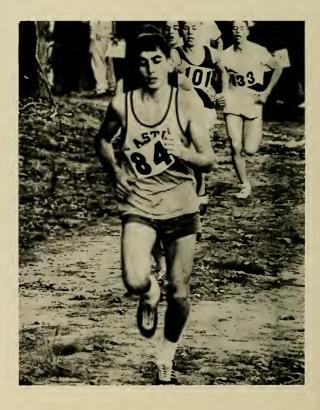

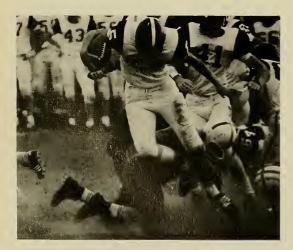

September's dusty field became October's muddy norass. Rain ... snow ... cold. The crowds were meager; the enthusiasm less. The boys had eyes stung by the dust, their cold bodies bruised from being trampled upon. Run ... kick ... fumble ... fall! Charge ... push ... tackle ... fall! They met defeat after defeat, and yet a remarkable increase in loyalty, unity, effort, and sportsmanship characterized our team. From the sidelines came the anxious cajoling yells of the coaches, Vincent Malewicz and John Collins. The field remains. Dry ... quiet ... memorable.

... their faces ground into the mud

FOOTBALL

... cold bodies bruised from being trampled upon

... eyes stung by the dust.

LET'S do The Preddie

FIELD HOCKEY

Nine girls stand in their places ready to whack a small white ball and chase it with sticks to the ground. The whistle blows. Bully! Ground, sticks; ground, sticks; ground, sticks - whap! Clumps of grass and clouds of dust fly at the players' heels. Crack! Sticks clash and the indifferent object of such rough aggression is carried down the field. A goal! If it has rained, a mud bath is inevitable. The girls emerge breathless with parched throats, sweaty or cold and caked with mud, and perhaps the loser. This is a rough game.

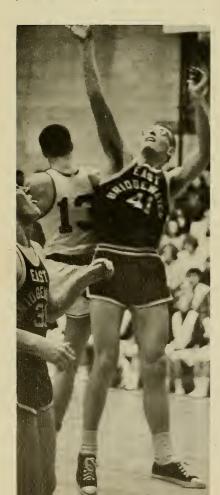

BASKETBALL

The whistle blows. Opposing centers leap into the air and tip the ball into play. Pass... dribble... drive! Feel the sweat, the tension; hear the screaming crowd. Push! Dribble... pop - a basket!

The self criticism for a foul or miss; the shrill shreech of the ret's whistle; the encouraging yells of the coaches; the heat, the weariness; all add to the pressure, as the game goes on, but you must stay cool. It is a close game. It is always a close game and in the last minutes a nervous crowd becomes frantic. Push yourself! Pass, pass, pass - and the game is over. If you have won, you knew you could; if you have last ... you wonder why.

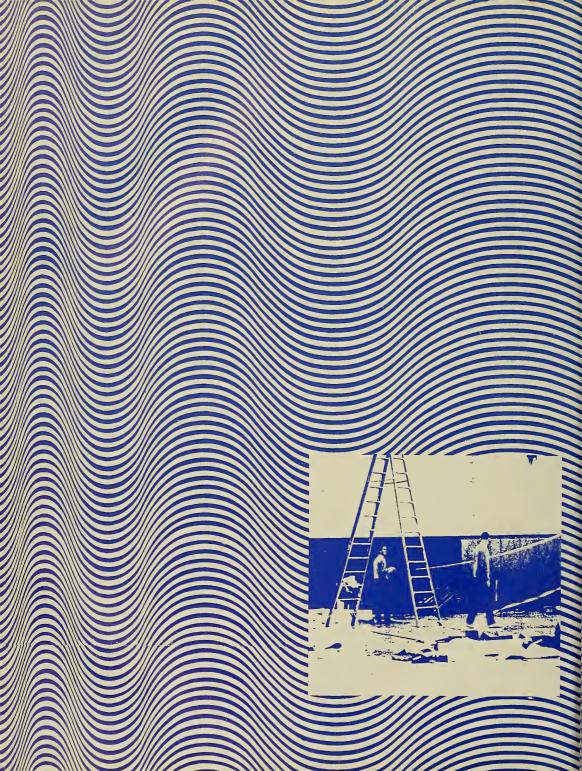

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

As the cold winter wind whips across the hockey field, blowing snow into piles against EBHS, our athletically inclined girls turn to the indoor sport of basketball. Gracefully they run and leap, pass and catch, dribble and shoot. Possessed with the desire to win, they exhaust themselves with effort and yelling encouragement to one another. On their faces are expressions of self-condemnation if they miss a pass or lose a game. This is basketball.

Class of 1965 this is your yearbook, picturing the enjoyment and achievement of your high school years. The book itself represents one year of grueling work. Do that write-up fifty times until it is right! Meet that deadline! Push those ads! Compile ... sort ... layout ... work ... create!

We, the staff members of the 1965 Torch, cannot tell you that this is a superior work ... you must decide that it is for yourselves. To future classes we give reluctantly all the suffering and the ultimate joy of accomplishment upon the completion of your yearbook ... and four of the most valuable years of your lives.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Here are the hanor students, the academic leaders. Here is a group with great potential, but little activity. The National Honor Society has been the object of much examination and criticism. Although its members are chasen for academic and personal merit, the society as a whole struggles for respect. This year the saciety stirred to fulfill its role as a functioning organ of its school and community. The achievements were not remarkable the attempts were.

PORTFOLIO

Think. Create. Be an individual. Free expression is the hape for our bold world. Speak out! Communicate! We can only preserve our freedom to make our beliefs known if we exercise that right. In our poems, essays, and art we published the views of youth in a transient world. This new publication was called Portfolio. It was an expression of ourselves.

Books for better reading ... pursuit of knowledge aided ... democracy through service. Trying to alleviate misunderstandings and to stimulate unity through service, the Student Council has received praise as well as criticism from the student body. Its name is suggestive of its function. Consisting of representatives from each class, serving as consultants, this influential organization seeks individual and collective betterment of all students. The Student Council aims to comply with sound and constructive criticism, but advocates proper procedure in attempting to institute change. Participation encouraged ... leadership expected ... success, foilure, cooperation, discord; but always the attempt. Unlimited ambition, guided by Miss Mary Anderson and Mr. Norman McGowan, was the key to our achievement. Through them words were transformed into action.

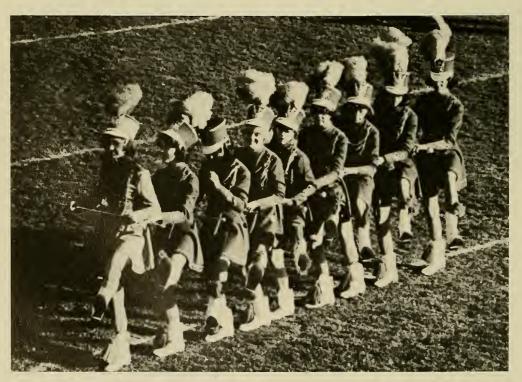

STUDENT COUNCIL

BAND and MAJORETTES

Tweet! Tweet! The blue and gold uniformed musicians march in formation onto the muddy football field. Numb fingers push the valves and beat the drums. Besides adding spirit to the football games, the band contributes to several assemblies and presents concerts throughout the year. Added this year was the exchange concert with Greenfield High School in March. EBHS can be proud of one of the finest bands in the area.

CHORUS

The screeching of the sopranos - the rumbling of the basses - and always the undertone of chatter. This was the social hour where the voices of the chorus members were often not put to their proper uses. However, out of the chaos and confusion created by over one hundred students, Mr. Schuller produced a fine display of musical accomplishment. Also there was formed a special choraleer group in March for those interested in putting in some time and effort on more difficult music. But whether in chorus or choraleers, all will agree - their singing was a credit.

FRENCH CHORAL

The French Choral and Art Group, one of our largest organizations, proposes to present a colorful picture of France, past and present. Slides, movies, songfests and lectures on the art, literature and civilization of France are provided at interesting, though infrequent, meetings.

and ART

J. C. L.

The first Massachusetts chapter of the Junior Classical League began in East Bridgewater High School. Through the few informative gatherings of Latin students, the members seek to better understand the ancient Roman civilization. The League presents an annual Christmas program in Latin and sends representatives to the state convention in the spring.

FUTURE NURSES

The Future Nurses' Club is a new school organization which was formed in 1963. It is an active and expanding club, having a membership of thirty-nine students representing every class. Within the organization's two years of existence it has been admitted as a member of the National League of Nursing which enrolls nurses' clubs throughout the country.

Through the guidance of Mrs. Robert Alexander, advisor of the club, and the kind assistance of Mrs. Hartman, our school nurse, the future nurses have completed many projects during the past two years such as carolling at hospitals and raising money for a scholarship first awarded this year.

CLINIC ASSISTANTS

Our school nurse, Mrs. Hartman, is aided in her task of keeping our students well by many able girls who affer their spare school time as clinic assistants. An ailing student can always rest assured that a clinic assistant will be ready to affer him physical and mental comfort from his ills. The girls are a valuable help to Mrs. Hartman; and they gain experience in first aid and in treating the various rare or imagined diseases that the members of our student body may contract.

LIBRARY ASSISTANTS

Every year Mrs. Hynes nurtures another crop of hardworking library assistants. She manages to find a task for everyone, which may include anything from watering plants to making felt bookmarks for Christmas. Every year she is deluged with volunteers who enjoy the fun and experience of library work and the joy of working for Mrs. Hynes.
